REMARKS.

The streets during the past season have not been in as good condition as formerly, and it is safe to predict that they will not be in good order again until the excavations for improvements in lighting and heating are completed. It is very unfortunate that some comprehensive plan for putting all the pipes in the principal streets in sub-ways was not devised before granting licenses to the several companies. Perhaps it is not too late even now.

This department should have entire charge of the building and repairs of highways, and no other parties should be allowed to make repairs.

Repairs should be made at the expense of the parties who do the excavating, and a deposit of money should be made (by all parties applying for permits to excavate), sufficient to pay the cost of repairing. This money should not be for use, in case of failure to make proper repairs, but should be for the direct use of this department in making them.

It should be a condition of every such permit that these repairs be made by the Street Department, at the expense of the applicant, and the certificate of cost by the Superintendent of Streets should be final, and this for the following reasons : —

It is usually the case that excavations are made in streets already somewhat out of repair, but neither dangerous nor in need of any immediate repairs. Now, the party making the excavation will not go outside the lines of his trench in replacing the surface, while in the great majority of cases the street cannot be repaired unless considerable pavement is relaid outside the line of trench, one-half, sometimes even the whole, street must be repaved.

The laying of car-tracks in the streets is another source of annoyance, locations being granted by the Board of Aldermen upon the recommendation of a committee other than the Paving Committee, and without the knowledge or advice of the Superintendent of Streets.

As these locations, which appear but a single red line upon a plan, are, when put upon the ground, a fixture, and seriously interfere with the structure of the roadway, as well as with public travel, it would seem better to advise with the Street Department before the matter has gone beyond remedy.

The laying out of new streets by the Street Commissioners is also a constant burden, and one which seems to be unprovided for,— the Charter, on the one hand, forbidding the Superintendent of Streets to do any work until he has an APPROPRIATION THEREFOR ; the Ordinances, on the other, saying that he shall keep the public ways in proper condition for travel,— as many, in fact most, of the new streets laid out require to be entirely rebuilt ; and as the money to be expended upon the streets during the coming season is asked for and appropriated before May 1st, it is difficult to see where the money is to come from for rebuilding the streets laid out after May 1st, and which, immediately, are chargeable upon this department, and for which there is an immediate and pressing demand to have put in order. The department is often unable to put them in safe condition, and is forced to fence them against public travel.

It seems that when a street is made public there should be some means of making it safe without taking money appropriated for another purpose.

JOHN W. McDONALD,
Superintendent of Streets.
